The first quarter of 2013 showed numerous signs of a recovering U.S. economy. The unemployment rate stabilized around 8%, interest rates remained at 50-year lows, housing prices and new housing starts were on the rise, technology spending forecasts held steady, and the NASDAQ returned to levels not seen since late 2000. Despite the improving economy, soaring stock prices, and over $700B of cash sitting on the balance sheets of public technology companies, global and U.S. software M&A volume decreased significantly quarter-over-quarter (QoQ) and year-over-year (YoY), reaching a four-year low.

Key macro events influencing software M&A volume in the quarter were:

1. January and February were consumed with debate and overall economic uncertainty over the impact of the U.S. government sequestration
2. High unemployment rates in select European countries and the European debt crisis spreading to Cyprus
3. Revised growth estimates in Asia
4. Historically active technology acquirers looked inward to cost reduction efforts and realignments, and away from M&A
5. Absence of mega-deals

Software Sector M&A Review

Global Software M&A Deals — Since 2010

Commentary

- Despite steep year-over-year declines, the software sector dominated technology transaction activity in Q1, comprising 51% of overall technology deal volume and 65% of overall technology deal value
- Global transaction volume decreased 20% in Q1 2013, from 702 to 558 acquisitions. Deal value fell 69%, from $19.4 billion to $6.1 billion
 - There was one software acquisition above the $1 billion threshold in Q1 2013, compared to four such transactions in Q4 2012
 - The peak for transaction volume and value during the past 15 months occurred in Q2 2012
- U.S. transaction volume in Q1 fared better than global transaction volume. U.S. transaction volume decreased 13% in Q1 2013, from 324 to 281 acquisitions. Deal value fell 53%, from $6.0 billion to $2.8 billion
- U.S. middle market transaction activity was impacted the greatest. Transaction volume decreased 49% in Q1 2013, from 71 to 36 acquisitions. Deal value fell 75%, from $4.1 billion to $1.0 billion
- M&A in Q1 of 2013 continued to be driven by acquisitions of intellectual property in the fields of mobile application development, analytics and cloud computing as enterprise software vendors look to fill gaps in their product and service strategies

Review of Select Software Transactions in Q1

Cloud

VMWare acquired Virsto Software. Valuation was not disclosed. Virsto had raised over $24 million in venture capital from investors, including August Capital, Canaan Partners, Interwest Partners, Southern Cross Venture Partners and Correlation Ventures. This acquisition reinforces VMware's shift in strategy from providing products at every layer of the software stack, back to its core strength of providing products for the virtualized data center. Virsto's solutions address the growing need for cost-effective and efficient storage for virtual servers and desktops. Companies around the world use Virsto to achieve increases in performance, reduce storage capital and operating costs, and streamline provisioning and data management for virtual computing.

- Oracle acquired Nimbula. Valuation was not disclosed. Nimbula provides cloud management software and was founded by Chris Pinkham and Willem van Biljon, who previously helped create Amazon's cloud. Oracle's acquisition of Nimbula gives it some needed private-cloud expertise and an expanded presence in the OpenStack space. Nimbula Director, the company's flagship product, is an Infrastructure-as-a-Service software solution for building self-service public, private, and hybrid clouds. The company's key differentiator is contained within its Nimbula Director engine, which is positioned as a "cloud operating system."
- Rackspace acquired ObjectRocket. Valuation was not disclosed. ObjectRocket provides MongoDB as a service. MongoDB is a scalable, high-performance, open source NoSQL database written in C++ and featuring rich document-based query functions. According to a report from The 451 Group, NoSQL software revenue is expected to grow at a CAGR of 82 percent to reach $200 million by 2015. MongoDB is emerging as the primary NoSQL database of choice, driven by its flexibility and ease of development. The acquisition provides an entry point for Rackspace into the high-growth MongoDB database market and provides them with an additional database option for its clients in an effort to more effectively compete with Amazon Web Services.

Big Data

- Action (formerly known as Ingres) acquired Pervasive Software for $227M EV which implies 4.7x NTM revenue and 62.8x NTM EBITDA. Pervasive Software provides cloud-based and on-premises software for data management and analysis. Pervasive's legacy is found in data integration and data management products. Recent offerings have targeted the big data opportunity with their line of DataRush products, which are designed to make Hadoop and other big data platforms run more efficiently. This is the latest example of the convergence between Big Data and the Cloud. Action is building a leading Big Data portfolio through the acquisition of Pervasive, the 2010 acquisition of the VectorWise analytical database, and object-store database vendor Versant, which it acquired in December for $37 million.
- IBM acquired Star Analytics. Valuation was not disclosed. Star Analytics provides a portfolio of business intelligence automation solutions, which automate the integration of data, BI applications, and other reporting tools across both on-premise and cloud-based computing environments. The latest acquisition complements IBM's earlier business analytics acquisitions of Varicent, Algorithmics, Clarity Systems, OpenPages and Cognos. IBM expects these acquisitions and ongoing investments in predictive analytics such as SPSS to expand its analytics product portfolio. Business analytics is one of the four key long-term growth initiatives of IBM and the company expects business analytics to grow to a $20.0 billion business by 2015. Acquisitions are expected to be a major contributor. IBM acquired 11 companies in 2012 at an aggregate cost of $4.0 billion.
- IBM acquired StoredIQ. Valuation was not disclosed. StoredIQ specializes in the analysis and management of unstructured enterprise data. IBM seeks to incorporate its software into its overall Big Data strategy, with a special focus on governance (litigation and regulatory compliance), secure data disposal and storage cost reductions. StoredIQ is the latest in a number of acquisitions IBM has made in the information management space. IBM purchased e-discovery vendor PSS Systems in 2010 and enterprise search vendor Vivisimo in 2012.

Mobile

- Opera Software acquired Skyfire Labs for $155 million EV, with $50 million up front and $105 million contingent on performance based metrics. Skyfire had raised $40 million in venture capital from funds including Matrix Partners, Trinity Ventures, and Lightspeed Venture Partners. Skyfire's Rocket Optimizer product helps mobile operators boost their capacity by reducing the size of video and multimedia by up to 60 percent. This technology is highly synergistic with Opera's browsers that allow users to surf the Web without using large amounts of data. Video is expected to consume over two-thirds of global mobile bandwidth by 2015.
- Yahoo acquired Sumly for $30 million EV. Sumly's investors included Li Ka-shing, through his Horizons Ventures, as well as Ashton Kutcher, Stephen Fry, Spotify's Shakil Khan and Zynga's Mark Pincus. Sumly delivers snapshots of new stories, giving users a simple, elegant and fast way to find news. For publishers, Sumly's technology offers a new approach to drive interest in stories and reach mobile users who want information on the go. Yahoo has been an active Mobile acquirer, purchasing two recommendation applications, Jybe and Stamped, in the last 6 months.
- Phunware acquired Tapit Media for $23 million EV. Tapit is a monetization company that offers ad units, real-time bidding, self-serve media buying and analytics to 30,000 publishers. The acquisition further expands Phunware's Mobile-as-a-Service (MaaS) platform product offerings to enterprises.

SAAS

- Abry Partners made a significant investment in Thomsons Online Benefits Ltd. valuing the Company at $158 million EV. Thomsons is a SAAS-based benefit and pension administration, workflow and reporting solutions, and ancillary consulting services company based in the U.K. SAAS companies' strong, predictable cash flows, based on recurring revenue, are very attractive business model characteristics for financial buyers.
- finalsite acquired Silverpoint. Valuation was not disclosed. Silverpoint provides websites and software to independent schools. The acquisition enhances finalsite's global reach and scale and supports continuing innovation in bringing world-class design services and content management systems to educational institutions. The growing adoption of SAAS in educational institutions is driving M&A and investment activity in the sector.

E-Commerce and Marketing

- Google acquired Channel Intelligence for $125 million EV. Channel Intelligence provides software to companies to enable customers to buy their products online. Google continues to enhance its business in E-commerce and providing a portal for users to search and find things to buy alongside ads for those products. E-Commerce is forecasted to be a $1 trillion industry by 2017 and Google has publicly said that 40% of their revenue is in the retail/E-commerce vertical.

Social

- Facebook acquired Atlas DMT from Microsoft. Valuation was not disclosed, but is estimated to be around $50-$60 million EV. Atlas allows advertisers to plan campaigns, buy ads on sites across the web, and measure their impact. The company can handle search, rich media and in-stream video, and display ads, as well as offer APIs for programmatic control of big campaigns. Facebook said it didn't buy Atlas to launch an ad network, but to help advertisers "close the loop" and understand how their spend earns them money.
- Twitter acquired Bluefin Labs. Valuation was not disclosed, but is estimated to be around $90 million EV and represents Twitter's largest acquisition to date. Bluefin Labs uses publicly available social media commentary from Twitter, Facebook and blogs to measure viewer engagement with television shows and ads.
- Pinterest acquired Punchfork. Valuation was not disclosed. Punchfork was founded in May 2010 with the mission of building tools to help people cook at home more often and make it enjoyable, bringing algorithms and analytics into the world of cooking and recipes. Punchfork's site, API, and mobile apps will be shut down so its one-man team can focus on improving Pinterest. This is Pinterest's first acquisition and represents its strategy to acquire a potential user base that is currently spread across many different specialty interest sites.

Software Sub-Sector – Public Company Equity Market Performance

Application

Segment underperformed the overall market by 3.8%. Licensed based vendors continue to struggle to find growth and are losing market share to SAAS based players

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- Manhattan Associates 21.7%
 - Seven straight quarters of solid execution due to strong services business and the signing of 3 seven-figure deals in Q4. In addition, FY13 revenue guidance was well above Street estimates
- QAD (10.2%)
 - Revenue growth in Q4 missed estimates due to license revenue deferrals dragging margins and several slipped on-demand deals
- Nuance Communications (9.6%)
 - Q4 revenue missed consensus estimates as license revenue growth under-paced total revenue with customers moving towards on-demand products. In addition, several key Federal deals were pushed out

Diversified Players

Segment underperformed the overall market by 4.7%. Large technology players are facing an uphill battle as they try to position their hardware and software offerings to cater to a new generation of consumers, whose first computing device is often a smartphone or tablet

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- Adobe Systems 15.1%
 - Q4 subscription attach rates beat estimates, with an expected 40% increase in FY13. The strategic change to Creative Cloud has resulted in EPS estimates being increased to double-digit growth
- Intuit (9.5%)
 - Revenues were light in Q4 driven by the late passage of tax legislation and delay in open e-file
- Microsoft Corporation (7.1%)
 - PC units continue to struggle as non-PC devices, such as tablets, cannibalize PC sales. Launch of Windows 8 has failed to catalyze a revival in the PC market due to the lack of touch-enabled Windows devices

E-Commerce

Segment underperformed the overall market by 1.0%. Large growth opportunities exist in all segments of E-Commerce, while retail, discrete manufacturing, wholesale distribution, entertainment, and travel/leisure industries have the greatest potential for future growth

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- Orbitz Worldwide 103.7%
 - Q4 results and FY13 guidance came in ahead of Street's expectations, benefiting from positive contribution from private label agreements as well as improvement in HotelClub, with stand-alone hotel revenues up 18% YoY
- ValueClick 48.4%
 - Q4 revenues were up 14% YoY, driven by 20% growth in Media and 10% growth in Affiliate Marketing. EBITDA was up 27% due in large part to record Media segment gross margins
- Overstock.com (14.3%)
 - Earnings have been very volatile. Unstable business model due to undeveloped distribution power on the Internet
- Blue Nile (12.1%)
 - Q4 EPS disappointed on softer top-line results driven by lower-than-expected sales in the non-engagement jewelry segment, attributed to a weaker consumer discretionary environment

Internet

Segment outperformed the overall market by 2.1%. Digital marketing commands 25% of marketing budgets, and companies are expected to increase their digital marketing budgets by 9% on average in 2013, which should be a catalyst for growth

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- AOL 29.6%
 - Q4 Revenue and OIBDA were ahead of estimates due to a 17% YoY growth in search revenues and 37% YoY growth in AOL network revenues
- Yelp 21.4%
 - Q4 Revenue and EBITDA beat estimates driven by strong mobile penetration and a 61% YoY growth in mobile app users
- Facebook (4.1%)
 - Core advertising revenue growth has not accelerated as fast as expectations. Recent teen survey suggests that Twitter is rapidly becoming a strong alternative

SAAS

Segment outperformed the overall market by 2.9%. SAAS software market growth is expected to accelerate over the next several years. Forrester predicts 25% growth to $59.0B in 2013, with an additional 27% growth in 2014 to $75.0B

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- SciQuest 51.7%
 - Q4 Non-GAAP revenue increased 46% due to a contract that was renegotiated, causing deferred revenue recognition to accelerate; signed several high-profile accounts in Q4
- Synchronoss Technologies 46.6%
 - Reported better than expected Q4 revenue results. Experienced strong growth in its personal cloud service segment as well as optimism surrounding the Verizon cloud roll out in Q1 '13
- Vocus (24.8%)
 - Q1 '13 and FY13 revenue and EPS were guided lower and likely to disappoint due to additional quarterly fluctuations in billings and revenue expected from customer transition
- Bazaarvoice (23.0%)
 - The Department of Justice filed an antitrust lawsuit challenging the acquisition of PowerReviews. After the announcement shares dropped 27%

Security

Segment outperformed the overall market by 9.3%. Security around the cloud, mobile and social computing is creating large growth opportunities for security software companies

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- Symantec Corporation 30.0%
 - Q4 saw billings, margins, and cash flow all outperforming, both the Americas and EMEA accelerating, and OCF returning to growth at +15% YoY on the back of cost controls
- VeriSign 21.8%
 - Reported better than expected revenue and EPS due to the surge in domain names added in the quarter. FY13 revenue guidance also beat estimates
- Allot Communications (32.9%)
 - Growth in the core business is decelerating, declining 15% in Q4 due to weakness in Europe
- Check Point Software Technologies (3.0%)
 - Q4 product revenue growth decelerated to 5% YoY due to weaker Americas

Systems, Storage and Network Management (SSNM)

Segment underperformed the overall market by 9.4%. The underperformance was driven by missed earning expectations at a number of key industry participants

Significant Share Price Fluctuations:

- PROS Holdings 48.3%
 - Strong Q4 growth was driven by continued strength in the B2B verticals, up 40% YoY
- Splunk 37.9%
 - Reported strong Q4 results with revenue, EPS, and cash flow above estimates driven by increased penetration of the installed base, and the addition of 400 new Splunk Enterprise customers
- Riverbed Technology (24.8%)
 - Lower-than-expected results in Q4 as U.S. Federal weakness offset enterprise strength and caused the WAN optimization business to miss revenue estimates
- VMware (17.0%)
 - Revenue growth and operating margin guidance for Q1 '13 was well below estimates
