

SaaS Software Cloud Update - December 2016

Public Markets

Mid- and large-cap SaaS Software Cloud stocks meaningfully underperformed in December 2016, falling 11%, below the overall SaaS group's -1%, the NASDAQ's +1%, and the Russell 2000's +2%. We attribute the weakness to difficulty closing big deals among sector bellwethers (e.g., Oracle, RedHat, Splunk, and Workday), a strengthening dollar, macroeconomic uncertainty, investors rotating out of the sector, and a valuation reset with rising rates impacting DCFs. Noteworthy stock performance within our select universe of SaaS companies include:

- Workday (NYSE:WDAY -22%) we believe the stock pressure was driven by management's early-December earnings-call commentary about enterprise deals slipping in November. WDAY cited macro political turmoil: Brexit, President-elect Trump, France, and Italy. It also mentioned a lack of acceleration in financials clients in CY2017 (the lion's share of business remains human capital management). Shares of fellow SaaS HR/Payroll players Ultimate Software (NASDAQ:ULTI -11%) and Paylocity (NASDAQ:PCTY -9%) were also under pressure.
- Amber Road (NYSE:AMBR -22%) while the global trade management (GTM) automation/workflow software company's stock declined 22% in December, it still ended 2016 up 78%. We suspect the recent pressure is due to investor concern about sales-cycle disruption given the Trump administration's anticipated protectionist trade policies.
- Cornerstone Ondemand (NASDAQ:CSOD +18%) in mid-December Bloomberg reported that CSOD, the largest remaining independent talent-management provider, has been approached by potential suitors. Comparable deals include SAP - SuccessFactors (December 2011 for $3.4B) and Oracle - Taleo (February 2012 for $1.9B).
- Intralinks (NYSE:IL +21%) is being acquired by Synchronoss (NASDAQ:SNCR -21%). The $13.00 per share (~$900M) offer results in a trailing EV/Revenue multiple of 2.7x and EV/EBITDA is 39.4x. Another bidder offered $13.50, but has since rescinded. With most of the Fortune 1000 having used SaaS content collaboration for investment-banking data rooms, Synchronoss is looking to build on these enterprise relationships and better leverage its own carrier clients. The deal is expected to close in 1Q17.
- Synchronoss Technologies (NASDAQ:SNCR -21%) we believe the pressure is from Intralinks' acquisition uncertainty, including a potential bidding war, the decision to make Intralinks' CEO head of the combined entity, and concerns around the viability of SNCR's core business.

- NAVIDAR®
- web.com (NASDAQ:WEB +343%) the SMB-focused do-it-yourself website SaaS company held a successful investor day in mid-December where it highlighted an increasing emphasis on international expansion (75% of websites are outside of US) and value-added services such as digital marketing. It also announced the acquisition of Datatec, a leading provider of web hosting, cloud servers, dedicated servers, email marketing, and domain services. This deal follows WEB's purchase of Yodle in February 2016 for $200M.
- Xactly (NASDAQ:XTLY -22%) the SaaS incentive compensation provider announced disappointing fiscal third quarter results in early December with billings growth slowing to 20% (from the high 20%s) as two deals slipped into the fourth quarter and it lost two 7-figure ARR clients due to M&A. Also, albeit still 25.5% growth at the midpoint, management lowered calendar 2017 revenue expectations.

December M&A Activity

We identified 54 noteworthy public-and-private acquisitions that occurred in December. Please see the appendix of this report for detail on each transaction, sourced through CapitallQ. Following we highlight a few more of these deals that involved companies in our coverage universe.

- Salesforce.com (NYSE:CRM) acquired TwinPrime, which provides technology to speed up data transfer over mobile wireless networks through software that developers can include in their applications. We think this dovetails nicely with salesforce's App Cloud and PaaS offering, Force.com. This business generates $1.5B of annualized revenue, or 19% of total revenue. Salesforce has acquired a number of programming-related businesses, including Heroku.
- Descartes Systems (TSX:DSG) acquired Datamyne for $52.7M, which provides a searchable database covering global import/export trade. It classifies and documents trade goods while meeting regulatory and security requirements and connecting with trading partners. This is Descartes' third deal to enhance its trade-data solutions, following its purchase of MK Data Services (July 2015 for $80M) and Customs Information (June 2014 for $41.5M).
- Model N (NYSE:MODN) bought Revitas for $60M. Revitas was MODN's
  No. 1 competitor in revenue management for pharmaceutical companies. The deal serves to deepen MODN's presence in one of its two focus industries (technology and life sciences), improves profitability, presents cross-sell opportunities, and brings new management.
